Titan Farms Takes a Giant Leap Forward for South Carolina Agriculture

Each peach that goes across the line is photographed 32 times, which results in precise diameter sizing, color sorting, and weight accuracy.

Titan Farms LLC., the largest peach grower, packer, and shipper on the East Coast and one of the largest in the United States, has completed a large renovation and expansion of its packing facility with a new Compac solution.

Titan has renovated and environmentally controlled the entire facility and installed a new technology driven, state-of-the-art packing system. At the unveiling of the new equipment during a ribbon-cutting event on May 28, more than 200 attendees and several community leaders gathered to show their support. S.C. Commissioner of Agriculture Hugh Weathers said that Titan Farms exemplifies the future of agriculture for South Carolina, while U.S. Congressman Jeff Duncan compared Titan's new packing line to the BMW plant of peaches. After these impressive statements, Chalmers Carr, owner and operator of Titan, talked about the benefits of the expansion.

After partnering with Compac, the two companies worked for three years to develop a line that would put quality as their foremost goal. Quality has always been critical for Carr, and that goal has led Titan Farms through every aspect of growth.

Carr is proud to produce "chin drippin' South Carolina Peaches," while elevating Titan as a leader for agriculture technology across the nation. "We believe in technology and its ability to help us efficiently feed others while being the best stewards of the land that we are fortunate to farm," Carr said in his opening speech.

This new technology will lead to advanced traceability, food safety and more efficient operations. The quality of the commodity will improve with the system's gentler fruit handling, precise defect sorting, and greater accuracy in sizing and color sorting.

Traceability is an important aspect of food safety, and this line allows Titan to track every piece of fruit from the shed to its destination. The Titan team worked hard during the fall and winter to not only bring in the new stainless steel equipment, but to close in the open-air shed, thus creating a climate-controlled packing shed for improved food safety control. Titan has also reduced its carbon footprint by installing this new energy-efficient line.

Already a leader in the produce industry, Titan's new facility is a model for efficiency and handling. The advancement will allow the company to pack and ship 3 million boxes of peaches, peppers, and broccoli annually. The installation of this new packing line and the overall growth of Titan Farms is a great milestone in agriculture for South Carolina. In addition, producers are learning from one another as this type of innovative technology enables the agriculture industry to grow at a faster pace.

Chalmers Carr said the new container tracking capability "can literally think for us."

Sharing South Carolina Agriculture With the World

Here in South Carolina, we know that our farmers grow the freshest, tastiest products around, and it's time to share that secret with the world. With seven interstates, three international airports, and the Ports of Charleston and Georgetown, the Palmetto State is in an ideal location for exporting agricultural products, and here at the South Carolina Department of Agriculture, we are working hard to take advantage of that.

The Port of Charleston, which boasts the deepest harbor in the South Atlantic, is a phenomenal asset to our state. The numbers speak for themselves: our ag exports totaled $948 million in 2012, up 156 percent from exports in 2000. That's right-156 percent! Our top agricultural exports are cotton, chickens, soybeans, wheat, and fresh fruit.

As part of South Carolina's agribusiness goal to expand into global markets, SCDA explored new territory this month at the 2015 London Produce Show. Only in its second year, the London Produce Show attracted 125 exhibitors and more than 1,600 visitors from 34 nations. This international event was extremely valuable to our state – connecting us with retailers, wholesalers, and distributors from all over the world. SCDA has a goal to increase the economic impact of agribusiness to $50 billion by 2020, and exports are one of the keys. All the reason to look more closely at international markets.

Sharing South Carolina,

Certified Roadside Markets in Season

With a variety of produce coming into season in South Carolina, it is the perfect time of year to visit your local Certified Roadside Markets. Shopping at a Certified Roadside Market allows consumers access to local products that are produced in South Carolina. Visiting a roadside market also often allows consumers the opportunity to see where and who their food comes from and make a connection between the farm and their fork.

For more information on how to become a South Carolina Certified Roadside Market or general information on the program, visit our website, agriculture.sc.gov/certifiedroadsidemarketprogram or contact Program Coordinator, Laura Lester, at 803-734-0648 or llester@scca.sc.gov.

S.C. Dairy Farmers “Get More with Milk”

Farmers Encourage the Palmetto State to Drink More Milk during Dairy Month

To South Carolina dairy farm families, June is time to celebrate National Dairy Month – and this year marks 78 years of Dairy Month! The Southeast United Dairy Industry Association, Inc. encourages consumers to support our local farmers at the grocery store and “Get more with milk.”

National Dairy Month began in 1937 as a way to promote dairy consumption during peak milk production in the summer. In 2014, more than 16,000 South Carolina dairy cows produced 30.5 million gallons, or approximately 262 million pounds, of milk. The top four milk-producing counties were: Newberry, Orangeburg, Bamberg and Edgefield.

South Carolina has a strong presence in the milk production and processing industry. There are four on-farm milk bottling plants and two commercial milk processing plants in the Palmetto State.

This year’s theme, “Get More with Milk,” focuses on the consumer and encourages families to make milk their first beverage choice. Due to its unique package of vitamins, minerals and nutrients, milk is an important part of a healthy diet.

June also marks the 100th anniversary of the National Dairy Council, which provides science-based education to consumers. It also promotes programs such as the National School Lunch Program and Fuel Up to Play 60.

To learn more about South Carolina dairy farmers, go to Facebook (Dedicated to Dairy), Twitter (@sedairy), Instagram (@sedairy) or visit www.junedairy.com to access activities, coloring books, activity sheets, facts, farm videos and more.

Southern Pimiento Cheese

This classic spread is a quintessential southern tradition.

Ease: Easy

Yield: 3 1/2 cups (serving size: 2 tablespoons)

Preparation Time: 1 hour, 10 minutes

- 1 (8-ounce) block sharp Cheddar cheese shredded
- 1 (8-ounce) block white Cheddar cheese shredded
- 1 cup roasted red bell peppers, finely chopped
- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- 1 teaspoon sea salt
- 1/2 teaspoon dried celery flakes
- 1/4 teaspoon ground pepper

Shred both blocks of cheese and place in a medium mixing bowl. Add diced red peppers, mayonnaise and spices. Gently mix all ingredients together. Cover and chill for at least an hour before serving.

Note: You can use jarred roasted red peppers instead of roasting your own. Use peppers in brine only, not oil, and be sure to drain completely and remove as much moisture as possible.

Variations

Pimiento Cheese with Bacon and Scallions: Combine 2 cups Southern Pimiento Cheese with 3/4 cup chopped, cooked bacon and 1/4 cup chopped scallions. Yield: 2 cups (serving size: 2 tablespoons).

Pimiento Cheese with Horseradish and Pecans: Combine 2 cups Southern Pimiento Cheese with 1/2 cup toasted pecans, coarsely chopped, 3 tablespoons grated horseradish, and 2 teaspoons granulated garlic. Yield: 2 1/2 cups (serving size: 2 tablespoons)

Pimiento Cheese with Sweet and Spicy Pickles: Combine 2 cups Southern Pimiento Cheese and 3/4 cup finely chopped Wickles Pickles™. Yield: 2 1/2 cups (serving size: 2 tablespoons)

*Wickles Pickles™ was used for recipe development; however any sweet and spicy pickles will also work well.

This was the sister event of the New York Produce Show that our department has been attending for years. Guests from all over the world received a warm South Carolina welcome at our booth, greeted by me, SCDA assistant marketing director Sonny Dickinson, and a large banner of the Statue of Liberty. With Lady Liberty holding a freshly picked peach as our backdrop, we received many questions about this star-status commodity from the Palmetto State.

Guests at our booth learned that South Carolina is the number one peach-producing state on the East Coast. Nationwide, we are second only to California. We talked to folks about our state’s growing agribusiness industry and the locally grown produce and products that we are exporting to the United Kingdom, Europe and the Middle East. Sonny and I took note of new trends and innovations that are occurring on a global basis, like tracking water usage for fruit or vegetable growth, improvements in sizing products, and globalization in food safety standards.

The London Produce Show was in many ways a stepping stone for South Carolina, giving our state insight into global demand and new export opportunities for fresh produce as well as commodities like protein, soy, soybeans, wheat and cotton. We are also learning how to develop and fill voids for those countries that cannot produce these commodities or have different growing seasons. Since returning to South Carolina, we have already heard from the international contacts we made wanting to know how they can get those delicious Certified S.C. blueberries, strawberries, sweet corn, and more.

SCDA will continue to take advantage of all opportunities to increase our markets and promote South Carolina agriculture anywhere in the state, the U.S., or across the globe. Connecting and networking with our agribusiness counterparts across the Atlantic Ocean has been a significant step in the right direction. After all, South Carolina products are “just right” for everyone!

Bring the Kids to Family Fun Day at the Farmers Market

Are you looking for a great family event to attend this summer? Come out to the State Farmers Market on Saturday, June 27 for the second annual Family Fun Day. This event will run from 10 a.m. – 2 p.m. under the Certified S.C. Grown sheds.

Consumers can shop for a variety of fresh produce from S.C. Specialty Food vendors and load up on local products. The S.C. Department of Agriculture’s commodity boards will be passing out free samples of great Certified S.C. products. Enjoy a taste of local peanuts, peaches, watermelon, pork, and beef, while supplies last.

Children will be able to enjoy an exciting kid’s area with a bouncy house, face painting, games, activities and more! And what is an event without music? An entertaining DJ will be on site, playing everything from current hits to yesterday’s favorites.

Lunch will be available from food vendors on site or at the Farmers Market-based restaurant, Dupre at the Market, which specializes in Southern food made with fresh, local ingredients.

For more information on the event contact Elizabeth Shuler at eshuler@scda.sc.gov or 803.734.0328. The State Farmers Market is located at 3483 Charleston Hwy., West Columbia.

A valuable aspect of Family Fun Day is teaching kids how food is produced. Here a group of middle-schoolers take a close look at collards growing in a designated plot.
